SPDR[®] Portfolio ETFs[™] Expense Ratio Reductions

Background

What is happening?

On August 1, 2023, the total expense ratios were reduced on ten ETFs in State Street Global Advisors' low-cost SPDR Portfolio ETFs[™] suite. These reductions make the funds the lowest cost, or among the lowest cost, ETF offerings in their respective peer groups.¹

Q & A

Why were TERs reduced on these funds?

At State Street Global Advisors, we are always looking to identify improvements aimed at enhancing the success of our funds' investors and helping ensure that our SPDR ETF offerings are well-positioned for long-term growth.

We continuously evaluate our product lineup and pricing structure in order to offer investors attractive solutions to help them meet their goals. These total expense ratio

(TER) reductions are a result of that process, as we believe low-cost ETFs allow buy-and-hold investors to limit the impact of fees on a portfolio's long-term performance.

How do these TER reductions impact the rest of the SPDR lineup?

Our funds serve a diverse set of investors who have many different investment objectives, requirements, and preferences.

Some investors place greater emphasis on a lower share price and expense ratio while others focus on a fund's robust liquidity profile, execution flexibility, and the presence of optionality. And as the creator of the world's first ETFs,² we are committed to providing investors with choice by offering ETFs that track a broad range of investment objectives with unique product characteristics (e.g., share price, fees, index weighting methodology, creation-unit size).

Within our lineup we have several products that may cater to both the "buy-and-hold" investors as well as those who place a greater value on liquidity and execution flexibility. SPDR ETFs offer ETFs that have been among the most liquid in the industry,³ with these changes, we now offer the lowest cost ETFs for the following core exposures.⁴

- Small Cap
- Mid Cap
- Emerging Markets
- Europe
- Developed ex-US
- Broad investment-grade corporate bonds
- Broad high-yield corporate bonds

SPDR also has the lowest cost ETF tracking the S&P 500 (SPLG) at just 2 basis points.⁵

More broadly, these changes enhance our comprehensive ETF lineup, which includes not only low-cost core building blocks, but also:

- Broad equity smart beta
 - Sectors
 - Industry
 - Style
 - Non-US equity regional
 - Gold-backed ETFs
 - A variety of active strategies within both equity and fixed income

With these fee reductions, how do the impacted SPDR Portfolio ETFs compare against similar funds?

All ten SPDR ETFs now have the lowest, or match the lowest, TER in their respective category.

Will there be further expense reductions across the SPDR lineup?

At present, we feel that these represent our best opportunities to provide investors with low-cost exposures, but we continually monitor our lineup.

Are you adding more funds to the SPDR lineup?

We do not comment on funds that are still in the ideation phase or are still in registration.

About SPDR Portfolio
ETFs

What are SPDR Portfolio ETFs?

SPDR Portfolio ETFs are a comprehensive suite of 22 low-cost global equity and fixed income ETFs designed to help investors build a well-diversified core that reflects their goals, risk tolerance, and time horizon.

Key facts about SPDR Portfolio ETFs:

- 1) With a median expense ratio of just 4 bps,⁶ the 22 SPDR Portfolio ETFs provide investors with access to a comprehensive suite of low-cost core offerings.
- 2) The suite includes the lowest cost S&P 500 (2 bps), international developed (3 bps), Europe (7 bps), emerging market (7 bps), mid cap (3 bps), small cap (3 bps), broad corporates (3 bps), and high yield (5 bps) ETF exposures.
- 3) The majority of the suite has traded at an average bid-ask spread of 1 cent, and is available on multiple no-transaction fee platforms⁷ — keeping trading costs and commissions low. These factors, combined with low fees, help keep the total cost of ownership low.

What does the complete suite of SPDR Portfolio ETFs look like now?

The suite consists of 11 equity ETFs and 11 fixed income ETFs, with a median expense ratio of just 4 basis points — 95% less expensive than the median US domiciled mutual fund.⁸

Of the 11 equity ETFs, 7 are US-focused covering various market cap and style disciplines and 4 are international/global ETFs spanning different geographies.

The 11 fixed income ETFs include: an aggregate core ETF; investment-grade corporate bond and US Treasury funds targeting various maturities; a Treasury Inflation-Protected Security (TIPS) fund; a high-yield corporate bond fund; and a mortgage-backed security fund.

ETFs trade like stocks, are subject to investment risk, fluctuate in market value and may trade at prices above or below the ETFs net asset value. Brokerage commissions and ETF expenses will reduce returns.

Equity securities may fluctuate in value and can decline significantly in response to the activities of individual companies and general market and economic conditions.

Non-diversified funds that focus on a relatively small number of securities tend to be more volatile than diversified funds and the market as a whole.

Investments in small-sized companies may involve greater risks than in those of larger, better known companies. Returns on investments in stocks of small companies could trail the returns on investments in stocks of larger companies.

Foreign investments involve greater risks than US investments, including political and economic risks and the risk of currency fluctuations, all of which may be magnified in emerging markets

Bonds generally present less short-term risk and volatility than stocks, but contain interest rate risk (as interest rates raise, bond prices usually fall); issuer default risk; issuer credit risk; liquidity risk; and inflation risk. These effects are usually pronounced for longer-term securities. Any fixed income security sold or redeemed prior to maturity may be subject to a substantial gain or loss.

Companies with large market capitalizations go in and out of favor based on market and economic conditions. Larger companies tend to be less volatile than companies with smaller market capitalizations. In exchange for this potentially lower risk, the value of the security may not rise as much as companies with smaller market capitalizations.

Passively managed funds invest by sampling the index, holding a range of securities that, in the aggregate, approximates the full Index in terms of key risk factors and other characteristics. This may cause the fund to experience tracking errors relative to performance of the index.

While the shares of ETFs are tradable on secondary markets, they may not readily trade in all market conditions and may trade at significant discounts in periods of market stress.

Investing in high yield fixed income securities, otherwise known as "junk bonds", is considered speculative and involves greater risk of loss of principal and interest than investing in investment grade fixed income securities. These lower-quality debt securities involve greater risk of default or price changes due to potential changes in the credit quality of the issuer.

Frequent trading of ETFs could significantly increase commissions and other costs such that they may offset any savings from low fees or costs.

The funds presented herein have different investment objectives, costs and expenses. Each fund is managed by a different investment firm, and the performance of each fund will necessarily depend on the ability of their respective managers to select portfolio investments. These differences, among others, may result in significant disparity in the funds' portfolio assets and performance. For further information on the funds, please review their respective prospectuses.

A Smart Beta strategy does not seek to replicate the performance of a specified cap-weighted index and as such may underperform such an index. The factors to which a Smart Beta strategy seeks to deliver exposure may themselves undergo cyclical performance. As such, a Smart Beta strategy may underperform the market or other Smart Beta strategies exposed to similar or other targeted factors. In fact, we believe that factor premia accrue over the long term (5-10 years), and investors must keep that long time horizon in mind when investing.
