INTRODUCTION

The State Street Ireland Unit Trust (the “Fund”) is authorised in Ireland by the Central Bank of Ireland (the “Central Bank”). The Fund is structured as an umbrella fund in that it may be divided into different Classes of units (“Units”) with one or more Classes representing a separate sub-fund of the Fund. The establishment of new sub-funds is subject to the prior approval of the Central Bank.

This Supplement contains information relating to the Units of the State Street IUT Strategic Diversified Fund (the “Sub-Fund”) to be issued in accordance with the Prospectus and this Supplement. This Supplement forms part of and should be read in the context of and together with the general description of the Fund contained in the current Prospectus together with the most recent audited annual report and accounts and, if published after such report (or if the first such report has not been issued), a copy of the latest unaudited semi-annual report. Details of the other Sub-Funds are available from the Investment Manager upon request.

At the date of this Supplement, separate Classes of Units in the Sub-Fund have been created. Further Classes of Units may be created in the future, in accordance with the requirements of the Central Bank.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND POLICY

The aim of the Sub-Fund is to deliver long-term capital growth with lower volatility than equity markets by investing in a diversified portfolio of assets.

The Sub-Fund seeks to achieve its investment objective by allocating capital across a diverse range of asset classes, and potentially adjusting this allocation on a quarterly basis. By diversifying across these asset classes and investment types, the Sub-Fund aims to reduce volatility compared to the global equity market, whilst maintaining a similar level of return over the medium term. The Investment Manager, on behalf of the Sub-Fund, will invest directly in the assets listed in the “Permitted Investments” section below, at all times in accordance with the Investment Restrictions set forth in the Prospectus. The investment exposure is intended to be primarily achieved by investing in other collective investment schemes.

The Investment Manager uses a top-down proprietary quantitative model to determine the appropriate allocations. The model forecasts long term returns for each asset class and on a quarterly basis these forecasts are used to optimise the asset class weights of the Sub-Fund taking into consideration the estimated correlation between asset classes as well as the risk/return characteristics of each asset class. This optimisation process is intended to maximise the diversification benefits of the Sub-Fund’s investments.

For performance purposes, the Sub-Fund will be measured against cash represented by 1-Month Euribor.

The Investment Manager may use spot and forward foreign exchange contracts in order to partially or fully hedge any exposure between the base currency of the Sub-Fund and the currency denominations of its investments including collective investment schemes and their underlying assets. Futures may be used to increase the Sub-Fund’s investment exposure pending investment of cash in securities. Alternatively, the Sub-Fund might use such instruments to reduce its investment exposure in situations where it intends to sell a portion of the securities in its portfolio but the sale has not yet been completed. Use of futures allows the Sub-Fund to have investment exposure without having to buy or sell an appropriate proportion of the Sub-Fund’s assets, while accommodating cash flows into and out of the Sub-Fund thereby reducing transaction costs and increasing liquidity.

Spot and forward foreign exchange contracts are agreements between parties to exchange fixed amounts of different currencies at an agreed exchange rate at an agreed time in the future. Forward foreign exchange contracts are not exchange-traded, but are instead over the counter instruments. Forward foreign exchange contracts may be used to manage currency exposures represented in the instruments in which the Sub-Fund may invest. Spot and forward foreign exchange contracts are used for efficient portfolio management purposes of hedging in order to decrease exposure to a particular currency risk and for investment management purposes to increase exposure to a particular currency.

The financial derivative instruments listed in the “Permitted Investments” section below may also be used for efficient portfolio management, for example to provide for the: (i) reduction of risk (e.g. a covered futures position, where futures are sold to offset exposure from an underlying position or the purchase of a put option or put option spread for protection against market declines); (ii) the reduction of cost (i.e. not incurring the transaction costs of buying or selling the underlying assets directly); and (iii) the generation of additional capital or income for the Sub-Fund (e.g. the sale of covered call options) with a level of risk which is consistent with the risk profile of the Sub-Fund.

Options are contracts in which the seller promises that the buyer has the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell a certain reference asset at a certain price (the strike price) on or before a certain expiration date, or exercise date. For the purpose of the options which the Sub-Fund uses, the underlying reference asset(s) will be the instruments described below in number 5 of the “Permitted Investments” section. An option giving the buyer the right to buy at a certain price is called a call, while one that gives him/her the right to sell is called a put. The Sub-Fund may purchase and write call and put options on securities, securities indices and currencies and use options on futures contracts and / or hedge against changes in interest rates, currency exchange rates or securities prices. The Sub-Fund may also use options as a substitute for taking a position in other securities and funds and/or to gain an exposure within the limits laid down by the Central Bank.

Please refer to Appendix 1 of the Prospectus “Efficient Portfolio Management” for full detail of the techniques and instruments relating to transferable securities the Sub-Fund reasonably believes to be economically appropriate to the efficient portfolio management which the Investment Manager reasonably believes to be economically appropriate to the efficient portfolio management of the Sub-Fund.
